The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) website contains links to frameworks and resources being used by partners across the country, including Washington.

Two key resources:

- 6/18 Initiative offers proven interventions for costly health conditions, and aligns preventive practices with value based payment and delivery models.
- High Impact in Five Years (HI-5) highlights non clinical strategies with a track record of demonstrating early return and cost effectiveness.

The Prevention Institute has identified strategies that are specifically connected to reducing high utilization of medical services. This article is especially helpful in addressing health equity.

Two highly recommended articles from the Roundtable:

- Social Determinants of Health 101 for Healthcare explores what we know – and what we need to learn – about SDoH to achieve better care, better health, and lower cost.
- Opportunity Knocks Again for Population Health describes challenges and opportunities related to the State Innovation Model and improving population health.
